A VIEW FROM THE TOP

Hello Again:

I'm pleased to inform you that by the time you read this issue of Mile High Futures, we'll be very close to the twentieth anniversary of Mile High Comics! On February 7th, 1970, I operated a booth at the Colorado Springs City Auditorium Flea Market. I was fourteen-years-old and had already been selling comics and pulp magazines for a few months through the mail. But that was the first time I ever tried selling comics to the public in person. In my mind, that day was the day that Mile High Comics began as a company.

I got started by locating an accumulation of 3,500 comics. I kept the issues I needed for my own collection and decided to sell the rest. My parents knew the operator of the flea market and convinced him that I would run a class act and not detract from the quality of the show. So he let me share half a booth with a lady selling Avon bottles. I was on my way. The very next month I had my own booth and, by six months later, I was one of the more successful dealers (out of about 200) at this very prestigious indoor show.

From the very beginning I reinvested the proceeds of my comic sales into more comics and, by 1972, I had built a large enough inventory to attend my first national convention in Oklahoma City, Multi-Con '72. I sold $1800 in comics in four days and decided that this was the career for me. Two years later, I opened my first store in Boulder, Colorado, using my flea market and comic convention inventory plus $800 in cash as my starting capital. I've struggled ever since with the seemingly endless task of building and capitalizing an ever-growing company. We presently have a total mailing list in excess of 100,000 customers world-wide, nearly 5,000,000 comics in stock, two retail stores, and a new comic subscription service that handles about 1% of all the new comics sold in America! It hasn't always been easy, and there were certainly times along the way when it seemed as if we weren't going to make it, but it has all worked out in the end. Many thanks are due to all of you who kept us going with the business you've given us. We certainly hope we can please you for another twenty years.

Speaking of the next twenty years, I would like to bring your attention to the cover of this issue of Mile High Futures.It's different, isn't it? Usually we use covers that have easily recognizable comic characters and appeal to comic fans. This time, however, we are using a "Super Mario™" cover which is directly tied in to Nintendo's best-selling video game. No, we're not going to start selling video cartridges. I selected the cover you see on the basis that it will also be the cover of what might very well be the highest-grossing comic book ever produced! Honest. No joke. For those of you who read the information the publishers put out, you've probably come across the claim that the recent BATMAN hardcover ARKHAM ASYLUM sold about 100,000 units at $24.95 apiece, or a total of about $2.5 million at retail. Supposedly, this is the highest gross sale of any comic ever published. Well, very preliminary estimates put the initial orders of the SUPER MARIO™ trade paperback at close to 300,000 units. At $9.95 each. The math whizzes in the crowd will already have calculated that out to be $3 million at retail. Wow. And it will be the very first product released by Voyager Communications. Not bad for a first effort!

I'm sure you're wondering at this point where Voyager Communications came from and who they are. I've got a surprise for you. Voyager is a brand-new comic company formed by Jim Shooter, the former editor-in-chief of Marvel Comics. Jim left Marvel Comics in the spring of 1987 under very unfortunate circumstances and has worked diligently since that time to reenter the world of comics. He initially formed an investment group with the intention of buying Marvel Comics from New World Pictures when New World put Marvel up for sale, but that deal fell through at the last minute. So Jim kept the same management team and found venture capital folks willing to front the money for an entirely new comic book company, Voyager Communications. I played a minor consulting role in the financing of the original Marvel deal and consequently have a great deal of interest in seeing that Voyager is successful. But as I'm sure you're aware, new comic book companies are a dime a dozen these days.

So I've been worried about what might happen.

I now know that I had nothing to worry about. At Jim Shooter's request, I recently spent a week in New York helping Voyager with some of their marketing plans, and I have to tell you that these guys are hot. They've teamed up with two of the biggest entertainment powerhouses in America, Nintendo Entertainment and Western Publishing, to produce comics based on their characters. The first comics out will include SUPER MARIO™ #1 and MAGNUS, ROBOT FIGHTER #1. But that's just the beginning. Based on what I saw when I was in New York, I think that Voyager has great possibilities for success. They have deals working with at least half a dozen other major companies that may produce incredibly popular comics over the next few years. Initially, at least, most of these comics will have limited appeal to "hard-core" comic fans as they will be very mass-market oriented, but the intent is to use those deals to get Voyager off the ground. Then Jim Shooter plans to return to the fan market in a big way. I, for one, am elated at this turn of events and wish Jim and the other great folks at Voyager all the best. It's going to be a tough road to follow trying to set up a whole new company in an industry so dominated by the two "majors", but if anyone can do it, Jim Shooter will be the one. With him back in the business, I think the events of the next twenty years may very well be even more dynamic than the last twenty! You can bet that I'm going to stay along for the ride.

Returning to news of Mile High Comics, I have more news about our computer. In our last issue, I told you that we were putting the computerization of our back issue department to a later date because of the rush of business we were experiencing from the BATMAN Movie. During the fall our business never did drop off as much as we expected, but we managed to get on track with our computerization anyway by adding more staff. We've been very focused on this project for all of December and January and our effort is about to pay off. Commencing very soon, all orders received by Mile High Comics for back issue comics will be processed entirely through our computer.

I'm sure you're wondering what impact this will have on you as a collector. First of all, computerization might make the job of the Mile High Comics employees significantly easier, but how does it affect you? Honestly, at this point we don't know all the ways. It seems as if almost every day we figure out a new angle. But here are a few immediate results:

1)All orders will be shipped with an easy-to-read alphabetical invoice detailing exactly what you ordered, what we shipped, what was out of stock, and any alternate choices we might have used.

2) When you call in to check on the availability of a comic, we should be able to "key" that item up on our screen and let you know immediately if it's in stock. That information will not be any guarantee that we won't sell out before your order is processed, but it will at least let you know if you have a chance at getting that rare comic you need for your collection.

3) As an add-on to #2, we are planning to allow our customers to "browse" our inventory via their personal computers. This means that if you have a PC, a terminal emulator program and a modem, you will be able to call our computer and ask to see our inventory files. You can then search the system to your heart's delight to find out if we have what you need in stock. You will also be able to place orders with your PC.

4)Our "hold" system which presently operates manually will be integrated into the computer to insure that those of you seeking a book which we don't have in stock will be first in line for allocation if and when those scarce books come in. The same holds true for missing issues from "Sets."

5) Our wholesale customers will be able to inquire as to books' availability and (more importantly) the current discount we are offering on given back issues. All discount decisions will be made by the computer.

6) Our retail store customers will be able to "browse" our mail order inventory and place back issue orders from the terminals we have provided in the stores. Back issue orders will arrive at the stores within 48 hours!

I could go on with more implications for you as a collector, but I think you get the idea. Most of the benefits I just listed won't be in place and have the "bugs" worked out for a month or two, so please be patient. I guess I'm being a bit hasty in announcing all the potential benefits, but I'm just so excited! I've been selling comics for nearly twenty years and I've wanted to create a better way to sell back issues almost from the beginning. As any comic dealer will tell you, keeping track of your inventory is just about the hardest part of the job. With this new computer program, I think I've found a way to keep track of all the functions of selling back issues. If I'm right, this could also greatly reduce our operating cost and consequently allow for a price cut on some titles or, at least, slow the rate of price increases. I'm keeping my fingers crossed.

On the subject of price increases, I think you will find that the catalog contained in this issue of Mile High Futures has fewer changes than any issue in recent memory. That is not because there is no upward pressure on prices. There is in fact a very healthy market for selected back issues right now and under normal circumstances I would have raised prices across the board by at least 5%. But, with the computerization process in full swing, I had to keep price changes to an absolute minimum. The fewer price changes there are, the less existing price data we have to modify that we've already entered into the computer files. Since we're now in the process of entering inventory, the last thing I want to do is to go back and change prices as well. So at least for the next 120 days most prices were "frozen." We'll see what the summer catalog brings...

Besides not increasing prices, I also cut back on some of the features we've had in our back issue listing in the past. For those of you who are used to seeing twenty or more pages of "Specials" and "Sets," you may be somewhat surprised to see that we've cut back to just a couple pages. Again, this was necessary because of the demands of entering data into the computer. By the summer catalog, all sections of the catalog will be expanded at least back to the usual size. And they may be even larger than before. In the meantime I really slashed prices on the Specials I did list in order to make them "Extra-Specials." Order early for best selection.

Well, that's it for this issue. Next month will start the next twenty years and the beginning of our computerization. Voyager will be getting off the ground and the snow will be melting away. The future looks bright for all of us and I'm really looking forward to seeing the changes that are coming!

Happy Collecting!

PANEL DISCUSSIONS

R.A. Jones

Never, in the course of our history, have so many waited so long for so little.

I'm sending out proposals for graphic novels to various publishers. Tell me what you think of:

"Dark Jughead"—in which Betty becomes a hooker and Veronica slides into cocaine addiction.

"Rich is a Bitch"—in which Richie Rich, out of sheer boredom, starts a white slavery ring. With his own mother being his first sale.

"My Alien, Myself"—in which we discover Alf is the vanguard of an extraterrestrial invasion of psychopathic rapists.

By now—unless you've thrown this publication away in utter disgust—you are bound to be wondering just what the hell the above ramblings have to do with anything, right? Well, it's simple, really. These malevolent dreams were all inspired by my reading one of the worst pieces of work to ever be allowed out of the sewer by a mainstream publisher.

Its name . . . is ARKHAM ASYLUM.

This BATMAN Annual that was shamelessly padded out to become a hardcover graphic novel was reportedly nearly scrapped at one time; wed all have been the better for it if the rumor had become reality.

Let me shake the slime off my hands and then briefly recap the story. Actually, there are two stories here, whose main connecting thread is that they are totally banal and uninteresting. The principal action involves Batman (for those who can't tell by looking at the artwork—he's the guy who speaks in black word balloons). It seems that the criminals held at Arkham Asylum (which seems to have all the tight security of a McDonalds) have taken over the place. They are led, of course, by the Joker (is anyone reading this old enough to remember that long ago time when more than two months passed between appearances of this most overused character in current comicdom?).

The secondary story presented here is the tale of Amadeus Arkham, the doctor who founded the asylum. Now, since it is common knowledge that all psychiatrists are themselves loons, it probably won't surprise you to learn that part of Amadeus was about 20 cards shy of having a full deck. And the same is true of the asylum's current administrator, who actually set all the inmates free.

The pop psychology that serves as the linchpin of this story is so ludicrous that Dr. Joyce Brothers would be tempted to commit suicide just so she could spin in her grave! Most glaring example? Batman—the tough, stalwart mystery man who strikes terror into the hearts of friend and foe alike—is reduced to a quivering mass of jello by a simple word association test! Then, presumably to show himself that he is still capable of feeling, he drives a jagged shard of glass completely through his hand! Not the brightest move for a man about to face his most deadly enemies.

And face them he does, sort of, as he is forced to participate in a murderous game of hide-and-seek. There's just one problem with this element of the plot: most of his old foes don't seem to have the slightest interest in looking for him. Some appear to be contentedly minding their own business—until Batman pops up to shove them down a staircase. You're definitely left wondering why this guy wasn't locked up with the rest of the lunatics years ago.

But if the story is pure drivel, then surely the painted artwork makes this a book worth having? Oh, the images are beautifully rendered, there's no doubt of that. But remember, this isn't an art book—it's a comics story. Pretty pictures do you no good if you can't tell what they represent and they do a poor job of storytelling. And such is the case here. And whoever decided it would be a marvelous idea to have all the joker's dialogue in red lettering that is nearly impossible to read should have his artistic license revoked.

And one final, but very big, question has to be asked of some of the comics shop retailers in this country: Where are the cries of outrage, fellas? This isn't directed at most of you—just the ones who, only a year or two ago, were screaming about ratings and adult comics. Let me refresh your memories; you didn't mind adult comics per se—you just didn't want to suddenly find a PG-rated book presenting adults-only material. Books like SUPERMAN or SPIDER-MAN.

Or BATMAN? That's what ARKHAM ASYLUM is, guys— a BATMAN comic book, one that due to graphic violence, obscenities and sexual undertones cannot be considered anything less than an adult-oriented comic. And it would be foolish to attempt to deny that this book is in truth aimed at that same audience that reads the normal monthly BATMAN comics—it can't be intended for people who only know Batman from the movie, because it is obvious that they would be totally confused by most of the characters and references in this book.

But its sales are going through the roof, so the hypocrites out there maintain their silence while they count their profits. It's reported that one well-known retailer out there who makes a habit of putting regular DC comics out of the reach of children has his copies of ARKHAM prominently displayed and easily attainable.

God save us from crusaders whose mortality begins and ends at their pocketbook.

Speaking of the BATMAN movie, which I was a moment ago, I am reminded that some folks have expressed amazement over my contention that it is not a serious film but rather just as goofy as the old TV series (only without the sense of fun to make it entertaining). So forgive me if I make a self-satisfied chuckle: the folks who hand out the prestigious Golden Globe Awards each year have just nominated Jack Nicholson as Best Actor — in a musical or comedy!

Only slightly more satisfying than ARKHAM ASYLUM—though much less expensive—is GOTHAM BY GASLIGHT. This is a sterling example of a clever idea that couldn't be brought to fruition. This one-shot is what used to be called an "Imaginary Story," one that sprang from a very intriguing premise: what if Batman had first appeared in 1889, and found himself face-to-face with the notorious Jack the Ripper?

Unfortunately, very little was done to flesh out that idea and make it come to life. In essense, all we are given is a fairly typical Batman story in which everybody dresses differently than they do today. The story also reveals the "true" identity of the Ripper—and if it takes you by surprise, then you have no business reading any book containing words of more than one syllable.

The art, by Mike Mignola, is good but severely marred by the worst coloring job I have ever seen in a book of this sort. Apparently an effort was made to simulate the look of old photographs, but the result looks more like old flexograph.

It is ironic—and sad—that with Batman more popular than ever before, the quality of his comic book exploits is not much higher than that of the various titles DC has been forced to cancel over the past year. (And that includes the first installment of SPECTACULAR—er, WEB OF—er, UNTOLD LEGENDS OF THE DARK KNIGHT.)

When Julius Schwartz kicked off the Silver Age of Comics by re-creating such heroes as Flash and the Atom, he had the good sense to do just that—re-create them in totally new and different identities. He didn't simply drag back the old heroes and drape new personalities on top of them.

Which is what is unfortunately taking place so far in the new Green Lantern series EMERALD DAWN. Hal Jordan, we are now told, is no longer a noble test pilot chosen for his fearlessness—he's a self-indulgent, weak-willed drunk.

Gee. How much better.

"Shameless Sales Gimmick" Award goes to JUSTICE LEAGUE INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL #1 (even over Marvel's awful "Acts of Vengeance" crossovers). It has almost nothing to do with the JLI, but instead is a Mr. Miracle story few fans would be interested in, re-packaged in this manner. To add insult to injury—the story is continued! Mark my words—the day is coming with the fans are finally going to rebel against this type of manipulation, and it won't be pretty.

Not all that is coming from DC is bad, thank goodness. A surprising offering is SUPERBOY #1. Don't get me wrong—we aren't talking great comic here, but it was much better than I had anticipated. For those who enjoy the syndicated television show that serves as the inspiration for this new series, or those who simply miss the old Superboy, this book might serve as a light, nostalgic treat.

A terrific stocking stuffer was to be had in CHRISTMAS WITH THE SUPER-HEROES. This DC special featured a top-notch line-up of creative talents, including Paul Chadwick, Gray Morrow and Eric Shanower.

Best of the several stories presented is one starring Deadman. The story will set continuity freaks' teeth on edge, but it spotlights the best use of a member of the Superman family since someone decided it would be a good idea to let John Byrne loose in the kitchen.

The strongest offering DC has at the moment also involves DEADMAN, in the new mini-series that bears his name. It takes awhile to get used to the bizarre new look of the character as drawn by Kelley Jones, but the story by Mike Baron is gripping and fascinating. From the DC line-up, this book gets the highest recommendation.

Compared to DC, Marvel seems content to rest on its laurels by not presenting much new material (which may be understandable, since the old laurels still seem to be profitable for them). But its Epic imprint has recently released two premiere issues that bear taking a look at.

The first of these is CRIME AND PUNISHMENT: MARSHAL LAW TAKES MANHATTAN. Last year's MARSHAL LAW mini-series was a very enjoyable, twisted look at superheroes—marred by the fact that there were long delays between issues. Here, you get a complete story in this one-shot, and it is delightfully bizarre.

Its plot bears some resemblance to that of ARKHAM ASYLUM, in that our hero finds himself fighting for his

THE FUTURE IN WORDS

Edward Bryant

"I don't drive. I don't indulge in drugs. I don't have a third eye in the middle of my forehead. I don't have a hunch back. I'm a big disappointment to a lot of people."

- Clive Barker

Wow. Here's some post-holiday cheer. It's always great to see a major writer repeating his success without slavishly recreating past triumphs. Clive Barker's done that in THE GREAT AND SECRET SHOW (Harper & Row, $19.95, 550 pp). This panoramic, 70 millimeter, eight-track Dolby movie extravaganza of a novel is the summation of everything Barker has written so far. It is evolution in action, and it is wonderful. Of course it's got a few warts disguised as beauty marks, but those are cleverly masked in the all-over dazzle of the execution.

Barker chooses Southern California as the primary setting for his recreation and redefinition of modern myth. Paloma Grove is somewhere out there on the distant skirts of L.A. That's not where the story starts. The beginning is with a dissatisfied man of humble origins. In the early 1970s, Randolph Jaffe is a nobody working in a nothing job. He sorts endless bags of hopelessly misdirected mail at the U.S. Postal Service's Omaha dead letter office. Through serendipitously intercepted communications, he divines the existence of a mysterious organization called the Shoal, as well as hints of Quiddity, an enigmatic dream-ocean and fliphements, the fabulous island floating therein. Most important, he finds in one envelope an exotic medallion. He learns of the Art, a form of power that surpasses most people's dreams.

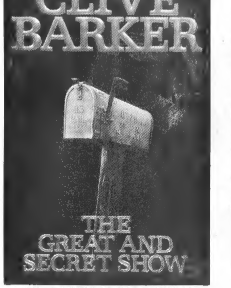
Jaffe also learns to kill in the pursuit of his increasingly obsessive goal. He finds his way to a closed time-loop in New Mexico where he encounters an ancient shaman named Kissoon. He passes a deserted town with an anomalous steel tower located in the dead center. Discovering the existence of the Nuncio, a god-like transformational process, Jaffe hires a researcher named Fletcher to develop it. The result is the two men, each touched by the gods, mutating into something more than human and being pitted in mortal (?) combat. Of course. It's not simply good versus evil—it's more the conflict of order against chaos. All this happens in the first few short chapters. Then the novel really swings into action.

We meet the League Of Pilgrims, four young California women who find themselves mysteriously impregnated by the hyper-forms of the Jaff (once Jaffe) and Fletcher. We encounter the children of those supernormal unions as young adults.

Paloma Grove becomes a free-wheeling arena as the Jaff and Fletcher pit their missions against each other—the terata, the worst side of human beings made flesh, and the hallucinatory human dreams brought to life. Howie, "son" of Fletcher, and JoBeth, "daughter" of the Jaff, meet—and fall in love.

Levels continue to appear, enigmas endlessly unfold. Quiddity is gradually revealed as the last great frontier, the vast, imponderable sea of unconscious dream dividing the Cosm—our world—and the Metacosm, the place where dwells the lad Uroboros, the dark and implacable foe of all that lives, all that is. Never quite knowing if they are movers or pawns, Barker's characters maneuver to reach Quiddity, to obtain the Art, to open the gateway that will allow the lad to enter our world.

The players continue to appear. There's Grillo, the burned-out journalist, now a star reporter for supermarket tabloids. There is his friend Tesla, a remarkably resourceful and resilient West Hollywood screenwriter. She's one of the best-realized characters in the book. There is Tommy-Ray the death-Boy, the Jaff's son and twin to Jo-Beth. There is Raul, the transformed ape-into-man. And on and on. Barker's hard-boiled detective Harry D'Amour, investigator of the supernatural, even makes an appearance toward the end. The canvas is broad, the painting surface splashed with an amazing palette of colors. Barker doesn't shy away from either sheer sensuality or treatment of remarkably diverse sexuality.



GREAT AND SECRET SHOW

Everything and everyone, of course, are converging upon apocalyptic confrontation. On the way, they must negotiate all manner of obstacles, from horrendous Hollywood parties to profound reality shifts, both physical and psychological.

The author is playing with myth in an ambitious game that ultimately pays off. It takes a while for the American reader to accustom him- or herself to the reality that this is a British writer re-interpreting America (Barker's knowledge of New Mexico geography isn't all it could be, for example, and the characters are remarkably ignorant when it comes to divining the meaning of the code word, Trinity). But the occasional tin notes of detail rapidly give way to being subsumed into the spell, the Art, the writer is weaving. It's plain to see that Barker, like J.G. Ballard before him, is fascinated with the textures and contradictions of American culture. The alien viewpoint is not always sympathetic—Barker wryly flays all manner of Hollywood conventions—but it's ever-enthralling.

I have a sense that 1988's WEAVEWORLD was something of a trial run for THE GREAT AND SECRET SHOW. Barker's again working at epic-length, but with a surer, steadier, more mature hand. Dream and reality are constantly blurring manifestations of the same quality here, not just in terms of the plot, but in the actual narrative itself. It's a startling and mesmerising effect.

I think Barker has keyed very well into the escalating metaphysics of the New Age '90s. Shamanism and Jungian imagery, those metaphorical cousins, figure prominently in the proceedings. Unlike other recent novels that have dealt with this sort of trendy material, Barker shows rather than tells. He appears to have a real instinct for plumbing the unconscious.

Have I said enough times that this is a good job? Even the presentation of this large publisher's package for the book is first-rate. Kirk Reinert's illustration is of a rural mailbox embossed upon a blue/black-on-black textured background of swirling faces. Gene Mydlowski claims credit for the design. It's all quite striking.

This freestanding first portion of what has now been announced as three linked novels (the second book will move from the corrupt Eden of California to the dark canyons of New York; the third will range across the North American continent) amazes the senses and delights the mind. It is a major work, a millennial fantasy for the '90s and beyond.

Joseph Campbell would have been proud.

Clive Barker ought to be.

If you can get past the cover on Rory Harper's first novel, PETROGYPSIES (Baen, $3.50, 275 pp), I believe you will enjoy yourself mightily. Now mind you, I'm not saying there's anything wrong with a lot of vaginal imagery, a doltish hayseed figure much in the mold of Dolph Lundgren, and a pitchfork with 'way too many tines, but it's not a package calculated to sell many copies outside of two counties in Wyoming.

So let's just talk about the book. PETROGYPSIES is a picaresque adventure set in an alternate-world located somewhere squarely between Howard Waldrop Land and Neil Barrett Country. In this world, the petroleum industry depends not upon steel derricks and carbon-tipped drills, but rather upon enormous extraterrestrial beasts genetically modified to be oil-field equipment. Though no one in the novel knows for sure, it would seem that the great living oil recovery creatures were left here by exploitative aliens in the last century.

The story begins when a wildcat drilling crew brings the driller-beast Sprocket to a parched Texas farm, looking to fill in some extra time and earn a little cash by drilling water wells. Young Henry Lee MacFarland is quite taken with the free, adventurous life of the petrogypsies. One thing leads to another, and he's offered a job with the Sprocket crew. So he's off to make his fortune (and incidentally, of course, to come of age).

Eventually Henry Lee earns the right to become segundo in Sprocket, the second-in-command to Doc Miller, the crew chief. He meets and proceeds to fall in love with Star, a crewmember of a casing gypsy matriarchy. He learns about human avarice, violence, and death. He experiences a disastrous attempt at off-shore drilling. Eventually he gets to visit the alternate-world version of Texas A&M University where he encounters a weird experiment in creating modern hybrids mixed from birds and pterodactyls. Attendees of Aggiecon will doubtless be distracted by a few roman à clef elements. Finally Henry Lee gets his lessons in responsibility and adulthood.

It's not nearly so perfunctory as I've doubtless made it sound. Rory Harper's sensibility is warm, earthy, whimsical, cleverly detailed, and when he wants it to be, bawdy as all get out. There's a lot of sexually provocative word-play in here, and it's reflected in the actions and lives of the characters. PETROGYPSIES is a blue-collar, red-neck world where folks sweat and love and work and get hurt.

Maybe we're seeing a new wrinkle in science fiction—working-class SF. First there was Allen Steele's ORBITAL DECAY (Ace), that effectively evocative novel of working-stiffs in space, a tale rocking to the rhythms and lyrics of the Grateful Dead. Now there's PETROGYPSIES, which starts off, one imagines, with a rasping Merle Haggard soundtrack. But then Rory Harper's novel has blues, maybe indulging himself just a little when he brings in a couple of black blues-men named Muddy and Willie. I assume we're talking Waters and Dixon here.

Anyhow, the beat's a good one that you can dance to—and the lyrics are just fine too. PETROGYPSIES has got to be one of the most auspicious debuts of the year. Baen deserves kudos for publishing this offtrail novel—not so much hard science as it is applied technology—and Rory Harper deserves readers. Lots of them.

One of the interesting things about 1989 was a healthy selection of graphic novel format books that seemed to me to provide an attraction for both comics and print fans. Here's a quick once-over of a few.

The visual translation of William Gibson's NEUROMANCER from Marvel's rather more adventurous Epic imprint is quite good. Something like a static movie (depending on how quickly you turn the pages), this adaptation has all sorts of credits attached. It's a Byron Preiss package edited by David Harris. The words are by quirky contemporary novelist Tom De Haven (FREAKS AMOUR, JOE GOSH), out of William Gibson. The artist is Bruce Jensen, who does a pretty good job of capturing

No, this is not a mistake. We're giving 50 FREE COMICS to anyone who will give our N.I.C.E. New Comics Subscription Club a try. Just pick your list of 50 (plus a few alternate choices), join our N.I.C.E. Club, and we'll give you your 50 picks for no charge!

Why are we doing this? Because we want you to try our New Comics Subscription Service. If you are reading this ad, we feel it's safe to assume that you buy new comics. How reliable is your present new comics supplier? Do they always provide comics in brand-new condition? Do they guarantee you that you'll always get what you order? Do they give discounts of 20%-40% off of cover price? Do they offer you special discounts of 50% off on selected special items? Do they provide comics from all publishers? What about postset? Books? T-Shirts? And what about their back issues? Do they give you 20% off? Do they have 4,000,000 to choose from? If they don't provide all of these services, you'll be much better off buying your new comics through our N.I.C.E. Club. Besides being "user-friendly" and totally committed to keeping you happy, we provide all of the following for our club members:

- ★ Guaranteed Brand-New Delivery
- ★ Discounts of 20%-40% Off
- ★ Discounts Of 20% Off On Back Issues (4,000,000 Back Issues In Stock!)
- ★ Computerized Invoices
- ★ Monthly Newsletter On Upcoming Comics
- ★ Shipping In Custom-Designed Sturdy Boxes
- ★ Monthly Bonus Discount Books At 50% Off
- ★ Monthly Investment Opportunities
- ★ Free Back Issue Price Guide
- ★ Complete Freedom To Start Or Stop Any Title
- ★ International, APO, And FPO Service
- ★ Discount Mylar Bags
- ★ Three Shipping Options: Weekly Bi-Weekly, Or Monthly

Are you still hesitant about joining? Here's one more fact that should convince you that N.I.C.E. is for you: During 1988 we had over 1,200 new members join our club, and stick with us throughout the year. They joined our base membership of satisfied customers many of whom are still with us since we took over management of N.I.C.E. in 1983! We have letters by the dozens raving about the quality of our service and the flexibility of our computer program to tailor any subscription to the exact needs of each individual collector. International customers, in particular, are pleased with our determination to offer reliable, safety, anywhere in the world! Do you like the kind of dedicated collector service provided by this kind of quality service to keep your collection complete, then N.I.C.E. was created for you! Join our club and we'll show you how fun comic collecting can be!

Once the total shipments in your account reach $50 or more, we will ship you absolutely free of charge the 50 comics (or alternates) you have picked from the list above. Your only cost will be exact postage and a $1 handling fee. The comics will cost you nothing.

How do you join? It's easy!
1) Write a list of the comics you want us to send you.
2) Add to the list the issue numbers at which you wish to begin. We'll do our best to start you exactly where you wish.
3) Total the monthly cost of your comics and double that amount. Add $2.00 per month as an estimate of postage & handling ($8.00 per month Int'l.)
4) Send us a check or money order for that amount and we'll start your N.I.C.E. account.

With each shipment thereafter you'll receive a statement of how much your comics and postage charges actually were and how much you have remaining as an account balance. You can then add to your account balance as necessary. Or for real simplicity, send us your Visa or Mastercard number plus your card's expiration date and we'll charge your costs each shipment. As a result of this great offer, we eliminate any possible profit we might make on your first shipments. But we think our providing free service for a while is well worth it if it motivates you to give our N.I.C.E. Club a try. We're fast, we're friendly, and we want to help you build your collection. Give N.I.C.E. a try . . . you'll be glad you did. If you have any questions call 1-303-455-2659 weekdays between 7 a.m.-4 p.m. mountain time and we'll gladly help you answer them.

life in a mental institution. Here, however, the patients are all superheroes . . . and all patterned after "real" Marvel superheroes!

It is wicked, sharp material with a violent edge—and better than 99% of the superhero stuff produced today. Pick it up.

Meanwhile, the first issue of CLIVE BARKER'S HELLRAISER proves to be better than the movie which inspired it. As promised, this anthology book does indeed try to go for more than the standard which usually passes for horror in comics.

All the stories presented here are well-written and well-drawn; interestingly, the best of the lot is a short tale set in the Old West which also happens to be the only one that doesn't contain any violent and/or disgusting visual imagery in it! This title is a welcome present for horror fans and deserves your attention.

And now for a special announcement—one that may dismay some of you, and will doubtless delight others.

This is the final review column I will be writing for Mile High Futures.

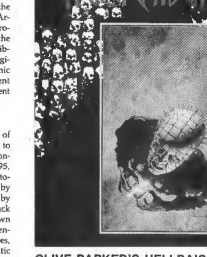
ing Gibsonian imagery. Gibson himself supplies a short, informative, entertaining foreword about the strands of comics influence in his work. This first of three projected volumes introduces Case, the 21st-century brain-burned computer cowboy, as well as mirror-shaded Molly and the Panther Moderns, the ultimate sophisticated media-conscious street punks. The narrative goes up through the point in the novel where Wintermute, the mysterious Artificial Intelligence, is introduced. It's too bad that the protagonist's name is misspelled on the first page, but the graphic novel only gets better after that. As William Gibson points out in his introduction, the reader of the original NEUROMANCER should consider this graphic adaptation quite literally a translation into a different tongue. Fine. The lines of communication are still eloquent and energetic.

An issue ago, I remarked upon the first volume of Eclipse Books' TAPPING THE VEIN. Now the effort to translate Clive Barker's short stories to graphic format continues with TAPPING THE VEIN BOOK TWO ($6.95, unpaginated). As with the initial volume, a pair of stories has been adapted: "Skins of the Fathers," with art by Klaus Janson, and "In the Hills, the Cities," with art by John Bolton. In both cases, the adaptations are by Chuck Wagner and Fred Burke, generally using Barker's own words whenever possible. "Skins of the Fathers" is essentially about a question of paternity, concerning, as it does, a tiny Arizona town, an endless procession of enigmatic and demonic creatures trekking through the desert, and a young boy born of an alien liaison. It's spooky enough. But for sheer creepiness, however, the honors go to "In the Hills, the Cities," arguably Barker's best and most ambitious tale in BOOKS OF BLOOD. This is a story of two gay lovers on holiday in eastern Europe, finding out just how incompatible they are as they encounter two Yugoslavian cities whose age-old competition is to duke it out in a ritualized yearly bout involving huge effigies, each composed of thousands of living, human beings. British artist John Bolton wisely gives the city-effigies a stylized Giacometti form rather than opting for the sort of beefy golem image that would require a more conventional choice.

The second Barker-connected graphic project presently seeing print is Marvel's shared-world horror anthology. CLIVE BARKER'S HELLRAISER (Archie Goodwin and Daniel Chichester, eds., $4.95, 64 pp). It's based on the smash B-film written and directed by the author from his own novella, "The Hellbound Heart." This is not a novelization. It is a selection of new stories in words and pictures, generally taking a starting place, the Lament Configuration puzzle boxes that serve as summoning devices for the Cenobites, those pain-loving and agony-inflicting demons that infest Barker's hell. In "The Canvas of Pain" by John Bolton (art) and Erik Saltzgaber (story), some Crusades-era folk mistake a Cenobite for Satan with suitably grotesque results. It's a nice morality play about crossed signals, and is obviously the first episode of a series. "Dead Man's Hand" by Shelby Fisch (story) and Dan Spiegle (art) is a slight but still effective vignette about the dangers of getting what you bet on in a poker game. "The Warm Red" by Jan Strnad (story) and Bernie Wrightson (art) is a reasonably nasty tale of how well yuppie greed fits into the pain and terror of the Barkerite universe. It also introduces a droll and dandy new cenobite named Face. Ted McKeever's "Dance of the Fetus" is strange indeed, somewhat evocative of HEAVY METAL, and presents us with a personable fetus whom an ethical



CLIVE BARKER'S HELLRAISER #1

Cenobite is obliged to leave here on Earth when he hauls its pregnant mother off to hell. The story-line will apparently continue. Although the tone's somewhat watered down, the stories contain a fair portion of Barker's perversity, wry irony, and dark humor. These are EC Comics tales with a very contemporary gloss. Good job.

Marvel's other new shared-universe graphic anthology is OPEN SPACE 1 edited by Carol Kalish and Kurt Busiek ($4.95, 64 pp). OPEN SPACE is a refreshingly adult treatment of a future universe outlined in this first volume through stories by Joe Clifford Faust (art by Tom Grummett and Art Viscardi), Barry N. Malzberg (art by Ray Lago), G. Harry Stine (art by Kurt Busiek and Bill Wray), and Lawrence Watt-Evans (art by Steve Yeowell). In the all-over plot, we see individualistic humans, in a corporation-dominated next-century Terran society, fighting to develop, disseminate, and utilize an effective interstellar drive. Faust shows the sacrifice required to make the knowledge public; Malzberg depicts the abandoning of humanity's Mars colony in a Bradbury-gone-sour scene; Stine offers a lesson in the wrong person doing all the right things—and how nervous that can make his confederates; and Watt-Evans rings a remarkable change on C.M. Kornbluth's "The Marching Morons." I appreciated the fact that these stories, while differing suitably in tone, all shared a textured, gritty feeling of human reality and realpolitik. These are reasonably grown-up stories for grown-up readers, whatever their chronological age. With any luck at all, adolescent readers will be startled, amazed, and intrigued by work like this that actually suggests such concepts as ambiguity, cynicism, and prickly moral choices.

There are some prickly ethics too, in Harlan Ellison's VIC AND BLOOD, art by Richard Corben (St. Martin's Press, $8.95, unpaginated). I guess this should be considered a transitional work, being as it is, an adaptation of "A Boy and His Dog," "Eggsucker," and "Run, Spot, Run," three Ellison stories that will eventually make up the first three sections of a novel called BLOOD'S A ROVER. Many readers will also be familiar with the memorable, if not wholly successful, 1975 movie version, A Boy and His Dog. The story won a Nebula; the film, a Hugo. All this is by way of suggesting that the tale of Vic, the tough but none-too-swift, 15-year-old, after-the-nuclear-holocaust, boy survivor, and his intelligent, telepathic friend Blood, the genetically augmented puli (Hungarian sheepdog), is a famous (and in the eyes of some, notorious) one. The adaptation is faithful, as one might expect, since Harlan Ellison chose and arranged the words to be used, and he's very particular about this sort of thing. Corben's art is colorful, suitably garish for the sort of squalid, Road Warrior-ish future being depicted. Having all three of the existing Vic and Blood stories together makes one hope to see the eventual full saga.

TABOO 2 edited by Stephen R. Bissette (SpiderBaby Grafix & Publications, $9.95, 144 pp) is a graphic anthology that I suspect neither DC nor Marvel would touch if you shoved railroad spikes up under the publishers' fingernails. Even in an era of gutsy independents, relatively explicit graphic novels, and so-called adult comics, the TABOO series has something to offend everyone. And it does it so well. TABOO 2 apparently had a bit of a rough time even finding a commercial concern to print it. But now it's out and it is a handsome (your stomach willing) production indeed.

If this book contained more words and fewer pictures, it would be clasped to the bleeding splatterpunk breast immediately. Even so, editor Bissette (aided by Nancy O'Connor and Tom Sutton) has selected stories in terms of bridging the gap between prose and visually oriented readers. His running editorial commentary is interesting and just detailed enough that is doesn't turn stuffy.

Like any other anthology, TABOO 2 has its winners and its losers, but the all over effect is quite strong. The book starts out with a page of picture and text from Clive Barker's projected children's(!) book, THE DROOLIES. It moves on to the "The Pajama Girls and the Cat," Eddie Campbell's pictorial musing on a real-life wretched Australian murder. It continues with "Encore" by David Marshall, a tale of zombie revenge that would have been bleak, even in the E.C. Comics heyday.

Some highlights include a series of strips by Rick Grimes, an enterprise that reads and looks a bit like Clive Barker doing The Neighborhood. Cara Sherman-Tereno's "Life With the Vampire" is an astonishing saga of an ambisexual vampire confronting the contemporary terror of AIDS. Underground master S. Clay Wilson contributes a series of incredibly disgusting—but perversely fascinating—one-shot panels. THE WATCHMEN's Alan Moore writes and Eddie Campbell illustrates the first portion of what presumably will be a bizarre approach to the Jack the Ripper legend. Tom Marnicki's "Check-Out Time" is perhaps the queasy apex of the book, a hard-boiled portrait of the complex night clerk at a disreputable hot-sheet motel. I know my stomach turned over.

The redemption of the TABOO anthologies is that most of the material, however grotesque, disgusting, or graphic, is always so damned sincere. You get the impression that the writers and artists here are mostly all incredibly committed in their portraits of the disquieting and horrifying. Right now, at least, comics don't get any more noir than this.

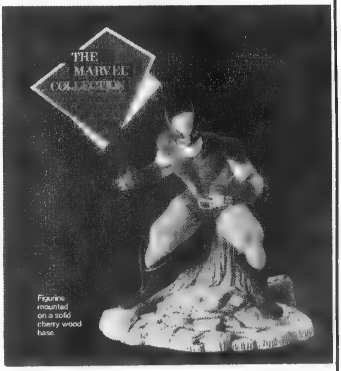
GIVEAWAY RAFFLE!

10 WOLVERINE BISQUEs

TO

10 LUCKY WINNERS!



This incredible collectors' item is the first in a series of bisque figurines from Marvel Comics. Each of the figurines is produced in a limited edition. Only 15,000 WOLVERINE BISQUES exist!

To qualify for this giveaway, fill out one coupon for each $20.00 you spend on back issues before June 1, 1990. (A $20.00 order equals one entry coupon; a $100.00 order equals five entry coupons, etc.)

We will draw the winners' names on June 15, 1990.

All entries must be postmarked by May 31, 1990.

Please fill out these coupons & enclose with your order.

Ordering Instructions

IMPORTANT NOTE: All orders and other mail should be sent to
MILE HIGH COMICS • 2151 W. 56th AVE. • DENVER, CO 80221

Please follow the instructions listed below when placing your order. We appreciate your cooperation since it helps reduce our costs and allows us to pass the savings back to you in lower prices.
1) All prices listed are per issue (2-10 1.00 means you must pay 1.00 each for issues 2 10)

2) Full payment must accompany all orders (either check, money order, credit memo or VISA/MasterCard) We accept no C.O.D. orders.

3) We accept cash in orders but advise against it, as we cannot be responsible for cash lost in the mails.

4) Please send U.S. funds only (unless banks in most countries. American banks will not exchange currency as a normal course of business. Foreign currency takes up to a month to get processed and they charge us about 35% of the value as a processing fee. So please no foreign currency con or checks) Checks drawn on U.S. banks are allowable. Canadian money is not.

5) Our minimum order is $7.50, not including postage and handling. We lose money on orders below this amount, so we enforce this very strictly. Any orders received under $7.50 plus postage and handling will be returned unfilled and we will keep $1.00 (non-refundable) for the cost of processing.

6) If you want to be sure your comics arrive safely, please include 50¢ per order for insurance. If you don't insure your order and it gets lost, we will accept no responsibility. Ninety-nine out of a hundred packages arrive with no problem., but if yours is that one out of a hundred that doesn't and you didn't insure it then you're out of luck. So while the insurance is not mandatory, we recommend it highly. Insurance is not available on Canadian or foreign orders.

7) You can help us very much if you would separate your comics by Marvel, Independents, DC, and Magazines (in that order) and then place them in alphabetical order within those categories on your order form. This not mandatory, but it does get your order filled about twice as quickly.

8) Please list alternate choices. Alternates are comics that we can substitute for your first choices if some of them are temporarily out of stock. Please list them in order of preference on the back of your order form. Also, it really helps if your alternates are somewhere near the same price as your first choices.

9) We do not guarantee that all items listed in this catalog are in stock at all times. We buy and sell thousands of comics each day, and have a permanent stock of over 4,000,000 comics and magazines in our warehouse, so your chances are very good in receiving what you want.

10) To increase your chances of getting a comic, you can do the following:

A) Give us a wide difference in the grade (condition) of the comics you want. For example, if you want a copy of X-Men 98 in F-ine but would accept a copy in Good if we're out of stock on Fine and Very Good (we give the closest we have to what you ordered), then indicate F-I in the box marked "Grade Desired" and G in the box marked "Lowest Grade Accepted." Order the comic at the price for the highest grade and if we substitute a lower grade, we will send you a credit for the difference in price. We never downgrade unless we are out of stock, so you have nothing to lose by giving us some leeway.

B) Because we almost always get more orders on expensive comics than we can completely fill, we send out a lot of credit memos. One way you can avoid this is to put "Hold for _____ Days" (you fill in the blank for how many) on your order. An order held for 15 or 30 days has a much better chance of being filled than one that isn't held. The minimum time we will hold an order is for 15 days and the longest time we will hold an order is for 60 days.

11) Please check over your order for errors, particularly math errors. Over ½ of the orders we receive have one or more math errors. Please double check.

12) Please print your order and your name and address. If we can't read it, we can't send it.

13) Please allow 4-6 weeks to delivery. We can usually beat that, but when dealing with the mail you can never tell for sure.

14) All prices are subject to change without notice.

15) Not responsible for typographical errors.

16) We reserve the right to refuse any order.

17) Postage and handling is $2.50 per order for U.S. customers. To ship to Canada or Mexico, postage and handling is $3.50 plus 5¢ per comic and 10¢ per magazine. For all other foreign customers, postage and handling is $5.00 plus 10¢ per comic and 20¢ per magazine. (Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, American Trust Territories, and foreign customers, please note the higher prices for shipping on plastic bags and box specials.) Please note that this charge is standard on first shipment only. If for some reason that is your fault, your package does not get to you on the first try (such as your moving and not leaving a forwarding address), you must pay the full amount of the second mailing (which is usually over $2.50), plus a $1.00 processing charge (or 50¢ per box whichever is higher). Be sure and give us your full address or it may cost you.

18) Once an order has been placed for merchandise, we cannot change its contents or cancel. Please be sure of what you want (or that you can really afford what you are ordering) before you call us or send us your order.

ORDER COMICS BY PHONE!

(303) 455-2659
7AM-4PM Mtn Time M-F

In another effort to speed delivery of your orders to you, we will accept orders by phone. We handle these orders as TOP PRIORITY and they are normally filled and shipped within 2 days of your call. We do not charge extra for this special service, but you do have to pay for the call. When you call, please have all the information listed below ready for our operator.

Please follow these steps to speed your order to you:

Have a valid VISA card or MasterCard or Credit Memo (we accept no C.O.D. orders)
Have the number ready for the operator. Minimum order $22.00
Be sure you have the cardholder's correct address and phone number (the card does not need to be yours for you to use it to order, but to deter fraud we need to have a correct phone number for the person who owns the card so we can confirm their approval)
Have the expiration date of the card.
If using a credit memo, have the memo number, sold on invoice number, date, and amount ready.
Have your order prepared before you call. (Our operators cannot check for availabilities on comics, so please don't ask them.)
Separate the comics on your list by Marvel, Independents, DC, and Magazines (including any Fanzines, books, etc.) Then, if you could, please put them in alphabetical and numerical order by category (not all together). This will get your order filled in half the time.
If you want one of our earned discounts, please be sure to have alternate choices equal to one half the total of your original order ready.

GRADING DEFINITIONS

Near Mint/Mint (NM/M)
A beautiful comic with much of its original printing gloss intact. No noticeable flaws other than those to be expected from a single reading. Tight staples; no writing, no tears, no stains. No comic is perfect but this condition comes close.

Fine (F)
A very nice comic book with some original printing gloss remaining. A book in this condition has obviously been read, but has not suffered as a result. No major tears, stains, or writing. Cover at light and back has an overall fresh appearance. No tape, subscription folds, major creases or pieces (outside of some thing very minor) missing. A very desirable comic.

Very Good (VG)
A nice condition comic with most printing gloss gone, but still in good condition. A comic in this condition has been read many times and shows it, but is not damaged. It will obviously be worn somewhat but has no major tears, torn staples, loose centerfolds or tape. Small tears may be evident, also perhaps the cover has small creases and/or a separation press. This condition allows for a variety of small flaws but no major ones and not too many small ones in the same book. This is the most popular grade since it combines reasonable quality with low prices.

Good (G)
A comic in "good" generally has one noticeable flaw. Examples would be in visible tape on the spine, a subscription crease, a loose staple, a small water stain, a small but easily noticeable piece out of front or back cover, and so on. It can also have no major, only many minor flaws which disqualify it from being VG. A comic in "good" is not acceptable to all collectors, but the price makes it attractive to many.

COMICS MARKED WITH AN ASTERISK (*) ARE USUALLY OUT OF STOCK, PARTICULARLY IN NM/M. PLEASE GIVE US ALTERNATE CHOICES ON THESE HARD-TO-GET ISSUES.

THOR #132

In 1985, when we purchased 2,000,000 comics from a New York warehouse, we received not only Marvel and DC comics, but also Archie, Gold Key, and Harvey titles. We didn't have the time or manpower to sort these comics so they have been stored on pallets ever since. We have now initiated a program to prepare these beautiful old comics and make them available to our loyal customers. All the Archies listed below are in fine to near mint condition (most are unread distributor copies) and there is only one price. Supplies on some issues are very limited. In the next issue, we will be listing all the titles and perhaps begin listing Gold Keys or Harveys.

(Published in 1991 and 1992, these full-color reprints of original E.C. comics had great quality at reproduction. Why did the publishers fail to do any further issues? Because these comics were priced at $1.00 each which was outrageous for the times. Great today a bargain then. Ed Hannigan)

COMICS WE WILL BUY/TRADE

EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1990

1) All prices listed are what we will give you in trade credit toward comics listed in our Specials section (50¢, 1.00, Super Specials & Sets) of our catalog. If you wish to trade for comics other than those on Special sale, please deduct 25% from the prices listed. For a cash payment, divide these prices in half.
2) We regrade books when our grading disagrees with yours. We always try to give you the benefit of the doubt, but if you can't handle us regrading if we feel it necessary, please don't send us your books. We would rather not enter into a deal you would be unhappy with.
3) Please don't forget to follow the instructions on page 18 of the February MILE HIGH FUTURES when trading. You must still use an order form and include $2.50 (cash or trade) for postage and handling. Please observe the $7.50 minimum order requirement. DISCOUNTS MAY NOT BE TAKEN WHEN TRADING.
4) For grading definitions, see page 22 of the February MILE HIGH FUTURES. Be careful in your grading. Our biggest problem with trades is customers being too optimistic about the condition of their comics.
5) Do not send us comics not listed in our trade/buy section. If you have any pre-1962 comics, please send us a list and we will reply with an offer.
6) Please package your books in alphabetical and numerical order in separate groups of Marvel, DC, Independents and Magazines.
7) You must include an alphabetical and numerical invoice (see page 54). Keep a copy for your records. Then pack your comics in the same order as your invoice. If we have to sort your comics, we will charge you $5/100 comics. If we have to invoice your comics, we will charge you $5/100 comics. If we have to grade your comics, we will charge you $5/100 comics
8) Payment for cash collections can take as long as 90 days or more. At these prices, we may be overwhelmed with buys and we process and pay for collections on a first-come, first-served basis.
9) Unless you are sending more than five (5) copies of any one issue, there is no need to write first.
10) Please package your comics well. We are not responsible for comics lost, delayed or damaged in the mails.
11) While we expect no problems, we reserve the right to terminate this offer to trade/buy any or all titles at any time.
12) Please be sure that the comics you are sending are the ones we want. Marvel has many reprint titles that say "Marvel Triple Action featuring The Avengers" or some such line. That is not Avengers, it's Marvel Triple Action and if you try to send them to us as Avengers, you are wasting our time and your postage. So watch your titles, and be sure of what you are doing.
13) Please do not send us reprints! Micronauts, Star Wars, Peter Parker and X-Men, among others, have issues which are reprinted by Whitman. If your comic is a Whitman reprint, it will have a large, "fat" diamond enclosing the price and/or issue number of the comic. Usually the Universal Price Code rectangle at the lower front cover of the comic is blank (empty). We will not pay more than $0.05 maximum for a Whitman reprint.
14) If you have a question, you can call (303) 455-2659 and ask for the trading department. They will gladly help.

PLEASE NOTE!
All of our buying prices have been revised in this list to reflect changes in demand for comics from our retail store and mail order customers. This particular buying list has also been significantly curtailed in scope to allow us to minimize the number of new issues coming into our inventory during the period of our conversion from a manual system to a completely computerized inventory system. Our intention is to once again increase the number of comics we are offering to buy with the publication of our summer catalog.

And for those of you who are wondering; yes, the pages in this section are printed upside down from the main catalog intentionally. This is being done to try to clearly differentiate our buying prices from our selling prices.
